The Journal of European Economic History is a quarterly founded by economic historian Luigi De Rosa. Since its inception the mission of the Journal has been “to reknit the common threads of European economic history” both at the country level and that of the then European Economic Community, now European Union. Supported by an authoritative international board, over the last forty years the Journal has published more than five hundred articles and a thousand reviews, achieving global recognition and readership. The study of the relations between Europe and the rest of the World has also been developed as globalization and the interest for Global History deepened.

Luigi De Rosa (1922-2004) was one of the most authoritative economic historians of the XXth Century. His works on banking and finance renewed both contents and methodology in Economy History. He taught in Universities in Italy and abroad, including Argentina, the People’s Republic of China, Spain, the United States. He authored more than six hundred publications.
